✓✓ Read. On a sent message "Read" is the recipient's read receipt. On a received message it is when this phone's owner opened it; iPhone records that locally, whether or not the message was answered.

Document Integrity

This document was generated automatically by ChatExport, directly from the message database of an iPhone backup.

No Optical Character Recognition (OCR) was used: text was read from the database, not from screenshots or images.

Message content, order and timestamps were not altered during export.

SOURCE

Device	Sarah's iPhone
iOS version	18.5
Backup date	14 June 2026
Encrypted backup	Yes
SHA-256 of sms.db	570b46ce08db449dda517139223898468d62d6506cafd9542b86700077e8cf2
SHA-256 of CallHistory.storedata	9a44e826987f99bc25fc8fc712881382ad844ef457e7ace08c05b91715935e3c

These digests identify the source files as they are stored in the backup, which was opened read-only and not modified. Anyone holding the same backup can recompute them and confirm this document was produced from those files. The backup also held a write-ahead log, whose pending messages are part of this document; it was merged into a temporary working copy, never into the backup.

SCOPE OF THIS EXPORT

This document contains every message of this conversation (31).

Messages recovered from the Recently Deleted store are included and marked as such.

Calls from the phone's call log, answered and not, are placed between the messages: 6.

All attachment files referenced by these messages are present in the backup (3).

Calls come from the phone's call log and were matched to this conversation by phone number or e-mail address; a call with the same person from another number is not included. The log does not tell a declined call from an unanswered one, so both appear as not answered. Calls made in other apps appear only where the app recorded them in the phone's call log.

THIS EXPORT PRESERVES

- ✓ message timestamps, with their time zone
- ✓ sender identification (contact names and raw handles)
- ✓ message order
- ✓ photo and attachment references

✓ reactions

✓ deleted and edited message markers

VERIFICATION

A SHA-256 checksum of this file is saved alongside it at export time, in a file with the same name ending in ".sha256".

It can be verified with any SHA-256 tool. Windows: certutil -hashfile "file.pdf" SHA256, macOS/Linux: shasum -a 256 "file.pdf".

The checksum can also be compared in a browser, without installing anything, at getchatexport.com/verify: the file is read on the reader's own computer and is not uploaded.
